CENSUS OF POPULATION, 1966.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

A Census of Population was taken on the night of 17 April, 1966, in accordance with the Statistics (Census of Population) Order, 1966 (S.I. No. 40 of 1966), made by the Taoiseach in pursuance of powers conferred on him by sub-section (1) of Section 16 of the Statistics Act, 1926 and the Statistics Acts, 1926 and 1946 (Transfer of Ministerial Functions) Order, 1949 (S.I. No. 142 of 1949).

The following particulars were collected in respect of each individual:- (i) Name, (ii) relationship to head of household, (iii) sex, (iv) date of birth and (v) marital condition, and for persons aged 14 years or over, (vi) principal occupation, (vii) employment status (i.e. whether employer, employee etc.), (viii) name of employer and employer's business, (ix) area and rateable valuation of agricultural land held, (x) age at which full-time education ended and types of school, college etc. attended (for persons who had ceased their full-time education). In addition, the head of each private household was asked to state the number of rooms in the dwelling occupied by the household.

This Volume contains the final figures for the population classified by sex and by place of residence using various area divisions. Subsequent Volumes will be published in due course covering other aspects, as follows:-

- Volume II - Ages and Conjugal conditions classified by Areas only
- Volume III - Industries
- Volume IV - Occupations
- Volume V - Occupations classified by ages and conjugal conditions
- Volume VI - Housing and households
- Volume VII - Education

COVERAGE OF THE CENSUS.

The Census figures relate to the de facto population, that is to say the population recorded for each area represents the total of all persons present within its boundaries on the night of 17 April, 1966, together with all persons who arrived in that area on the morning of Monday, 18 April, 1966, not having been enumerated elsewhere. Persons on board ships in port are included with the population of adjacent areas. The figures, therefore, include visitors present on Census night as well as residents, but Irish persons temporarily absent from the State are excluded. The date of the Census was, however, chosen to coincide with a period when passenger movements were at a minimum and consequently the figures closely approximate to those for the normally resident population.

Members of the Defence Forces who, on Census date, were serving abroad with the United Nations were, of course, excluded from the enumeration. The total number of officers and men concerned was 537.

CONDUCT OF THE CENSUS.

The Garda Síochána, assisted in certain areas by specially appointed Temporary Civilian Enumerators, acted as official enumerators for all parts of the country outside the Dublin region. Within the Dublin region the duties of enumeration were carried out by Postal Officials. The Census schedules for completion by the head of each family or institution were distributed within the three weeks immediately prior to Census date while collection of the completed forms was commenced on the day after Census date. The enumerators scrutinised the returns at the time of collection to ensure that they were correctly completed and, where necessary, they assisted the householders to fill up the forms. Each enumerator prepared a summary, by sex, of the population of his area and from these summaries the Preliminary Report*, which was published in August, 1966, was compiled. The completed schedules for the individual households were then transmitted to the Census Office for the preparation of the remaining Reports of the Census. The enumerators performed their difficult and onerous duties most efficiently.

CONTENTS OF VOLUME I OF THE 1966 CENSUS.

While the statistics contained in the corresponding volumes of earlier censuses are continued in the present report, a number of changes has been made in the arrangement of tables and some additional tables have been included. The principal change is in respect of TABLE 11, which shows the populations of District Electoral Divisions. In the case of District Electoral Divisions which contain towns or portions of towns it was the practice to show in TABLE 11 of earlier Census reports separate population figures for the portions of the District Electoral Divisions within these towns. In the present volume, however, figures for complete District Electoral Divisions only are shown in TABLE 11, while the particulars of towns are to be found in TABLE 8, which has been extended to show for each town the District Electoral Division(s) in which it lies.

The new tables contained in this volume are as follows:- TABLE 3, which gives County totals in convenient form, together with numbers of females per 1,000 males in each County; TABLE 7, which shows the aggregate town and aggregate rural population of each County; TABLE 12, which shows the 1961 and 1966 populations of towns by type of district; TABLE 17, which shows the total population in Gaeltacht areas as defined by the Gaeltacht Areas Order, 1956, and TABLE 18, which shows the population of inhabited islands off the coast.

ADMINISTRATIVE AND CENSUS AREAS.

There are many different territorial divisions of the country, of which the most important, from the point of view of the Census of Population, are listed below.

It should be particularly noted that the areas concerned are as defined at the date of the 1966 Census of Population, and that subsequent revisions have not been taken into account.

TOWNLANDS

The enumeration of the Census is carried out, in the first instance, by Townlands in rural areas and by streets in town areas. The Townland is the smallest territorial division used for administrative purposes. Population figures in respect of Townlands, of which there are about 51,000, have not been published since the Census of 1911. However, populations of individual Townlands (excluding portions in towns) will be furnished to inquirers on request.

DISTRICT ELECTORAL DIVISIONS

The smallest territorial division for which population statistics are published is the District Electoral Division (or, in the County Boroughs, the Ward). In the case of rural areas, the figures for Townlands are aggregated to give those for the District Electoral Divisions, while the figures for streets in town areas are similarly aggregated. There are 3,064 District Electoral Divisions (or Wards) in the State and population figures for these areas are contained in TABLE 11 of this Volume.

URBAN AND RURAL DISTRICTS

District Electoral Divisions are aggregated to give Urban and (former) Rural Districts which, in turn, build up to Counties. The Rural Districts, which numbered 160, were abolished as administrative areas in 1925 (or, in the case of the Rural Districts in Co. Dublin, in 1930) but have been retained for Census purposes as convenient units of area, intermediate in size between the District Electoral Division and the County. A map showing County and Rural District boundaries appears on page ii. Figures for Urban and Rural Districts are contained in TABLES 9 and 11 of this Volume.

* Census of Population of Ireland 1966 - Preliminary Report (Pr. 9049).

REGISTRARS' DISTRICTS

The organisation of the Public Health services is based on the Registrar's District and the Dispensary District. In the great majority of cases the Registrar's District and the Dispensary District are co-terminous but, in certain cases, principally in urban areas, a Dispensary District will contain two or more Registrars' Districts. In the Reports of Censuses prior to 1961 figures were published in respect of both Dispensary Districts and Registrars' Districts. Figures for Registrars' Districts only were published in respect of 1961 and this practice has been continued in the present volume. Registrars' Districts, of which there are 651, aggregate to Superintendent Registrars' Districts, which number 126. In many cases, though by no means invariable, Superintendent Registrars' Districts coincide with Rural Districts plus any adjoining Urban Districts. Superintendent Registrars' Districts combine into Counties (including the County Boroughs). Figures in respect of Registrars' Districts and Superintendent Registrars' Districts are given in TABLE 10.

CONSTITUENCIES

For the purpose of Elections to Dáil Éireann, the country is divided into Constituencies which, under Article 16.4^o of the Constitution of Ireland, have to be revised at least once in every twelve years with due regard to changes in the distribution of population. The boundaries were last revised in July, 1961 and the Schedule to the Electoral (Amendment) Act, 1961, contains the details of their composition. Population figures for these areas are contained in TABLE 14.

COUNTY AND BOROUGH ELECTORAL AREAS

For elections to County Councils, each County is divided into Electoral Areas which have been constituted by Orders made under the Local Government Act, 1941. These areas, which number 123, are, in general, formed by the aggregation of District Electoral Divisions. In a small number of cases, however, District Electoral Divisions are divided between County Electoral Areas to facilitate electors. In the case of County Boroughs the Corporation elections are based on Borough Electoral Areas. Population figures for County and Borough Electoral Areas are contained in TABLE 15 of this Volume.

Changes affecting Electoral Areas in Cork County Borough and Kildare County were made between 1961 and 1966. Details of these changes are shown in the Appendix.

CIVIL PARISHES

Originally an ecclesiastical division and later used for civil purposes, the Civil Parish has been for many years obsolete as an administrative unit of area and statistics relating to Civil Parishes for the country as a whole were not published since the 1911 Census. As numerous requests for population figures in respect of Civil Parishes — particularly those in Dublin County and County Borough and in the other large cities — were received in recent years, it was decided, on the occasion of the 1961 Census, to publish total population figures in respect of the Civil Parishes in Dublin County and County Borough and also of Civil Parishes in the County Boroughs of Cork, Limerick and Waterford. Corresponding 1966 figures are contained in TABLES 16A and 16B, respectively, which also show 1901 population in each case together with the percentage change in population since 1901.

TOWNS

For purposes of statistical analysis one of the most important divisions of the population according to area is that between town and rural districts, while classifications of population by size of town are also of considerable interest. In this context, the precise definitions of "town" and "rural" areas present a number of difficulties. Towns fall into two classes, namely those with and those without legally defined boundaries. The first class comprises (a) the four County Boroughs and the Borough of Dun Laoghaire, (b) the six Municipal Boroughs, (c) the 49 Urban Districts and (d) the 29 Towns under the Towns Improvement (Ireland) Act, 1854. The areas to be enumerated as towns not having legally defined boundaries must be determined by the Census authorities and are herein referred to as Census Towns.

In the case of towns with legally defined boundaries it is necessary, for administrative purposes, to compile population figures for the areas within these boundaries, and these figures are given in various tables throughout this volume. However, in the case of many such towns it happens that extensive building has taken place outside of but in close proximity to the legally defined boundaries. The result is that large numbers of persons who should be regarded as belonging to the communities of which these towns are the nuclei are, nevertheless, excluded from their populations when attention is confined strictly to legally defined boundaries. This problem is one which, by its nature, tends to become more acute from one Census to the next, as building activity extends further and further into the countryside surrounding these towns, while revisions of legally defined boundaries, being dependent on other factors besides the necessity of definition for Census purposes, tend to lag behind.

In 1926 and 1936 the definition of a Census Town without legally defined boundaries was simply "a cluster of twenty or more houses". With the increased building activity in recent years, involving in many cases the transfer of town dwellers to blocks of new houses adjacent to the old clusters but not necessarily contiguous to them it became necessary to modify the original definition to include the newly built clusters with the original Census Town, provided that the residents were still considered to take part in the community life of that town. This principle was followed at the 1946 and 1951 Censuses. Apart from the application of the amended definition, the delimitation of a Census Town was rather imprecise since no directions could be given as to the maximum distance between houses to be regarded as forming a cluster. The new definition placed still more reliance upon the judgement of individual enumerators with the result that the application of the principle varied from district to district.

For the reasons set out in the foregoing paragraphs a special investigation was held in conjunction with the 1956 Census, with the objects of (a) determining the extent of the suburban areas or environs of towns with legally defined boundaries and (b) establishing, on a uniform basis, boundaries for Census Towns. Whereas up to and including the 1951 Census the Census Town was defined as "cluster of 20 houses or more", in 1956 this definition was varied to the extent of including only occupied houses in determining the lower limit of size. The various boundaries were drawn on Ordnance Survey maps after consultation with Local Authority Officials whose considerable local knowledge was of greatest value in the work. In cases where doubt arose as to whether a cluster of houses outside a town should be included with it or not it was frequently found that such factors as whether or not these houses had a common electricity or water supply with the town were a valuable guide.

For the 1961 Census and again at the 1966 Census the boundaries drawn in 1956 were reviewed and where necessary they were revised to take account of new building. In the majority of cases no revisions were found to be necessary, for the purposes of the 1966 Census, in the boundaries which had been used in 1961. Statutory changes were made extending the boundaries of Cork and Waterford County Boroughs and the Urban Districts of Ceanannus Mór and Trim. Details of these changes are given in the Appendix.

In the case of Dublin and Limerick County Boroughs and the Borough of Dun Laoghaire, the boundaries of the suburban areas were revised. The extension of the legally defined boundary of Cork County Borough necessitated a revision of the area defined as its suburbs. It was found unnecessary to define any suburban area for Waterford County Borough. The areas comprising Dublin, Dun Laoghaire, Cork and Limerick suburbs are set out in the Appendix.

It should be clearly understood that the definitions of suburban areas, environs and Census Towns applied throughout this volume have been made for purposes of statistical analysis only. They do not affect in any way the existing legally defined boundaries of County Boroughs, Boroughs, Urban Districts or Towns under the Towns Improvement (Ireland) Act, 1854, as used for general administrative or local government purposes.

Population figures for towns are contained in TABLES 8, 12, 13 and 19. TABLE 8 contains the total populations of all towns, and of their suburbs or environs where applicable, arranged in order of size within Counties. An alphabetical list of these towns with their populations, is given in TABLE 19. In TABLES 12 and 13 towns of 1,500 population or over are arranged in size groups depending on total population. By "total population" in this context is meant the total population including that of suburbs or environs, if any. The total numbers of persons living in towns of various size ranges and in country districts are, also, shown in these Tables.

AGGREGATE TOWN AND RURAL AREAS

The population in the "Aggregate Town Area" of each County, as used in TABLE 7 of this volume and in the remaining volumes of the Census is defined as those persons residing within towns of 1,500 inhabitants or more. If a town with a legally defined boundary has a suburban area or environs outside this boundary and if the total population made up of the population inside the legally defined boundary plus that in the suburbs or environs amounts to 1,500 persons or over this town (including suburbs or environs) is classified as belonging to the "Aggregate Town Area". The population residing in all areas outside towns of 1,500 inhabitants or over is classified as belonging to the "Aggregate Rural Area"; thus in TABLE 7 the population of all towns under 1,500 is included in the "Aggregate Rural Area" totals.

GAELTACHT AREAS

The Gaeltacht Areas Order, 1956, defined the Gaeltacht as comprising 143 District Electoral Divisions or parts of District Electoral Divisions in the counties of Cork, Donegal, Galway, Kerry, Mayo and Waterford. The population of these District Electoral Divisions or parts of District Electoral Divisions in 1956, 1961 and 1966 are given in TABLE 17.

ISLANDS OFF THE COAST

The populations in 1961 and 1966 of inhabited islands off the coast are shown in TABLE 18. In some cases the areas of land concerned may not, strictly speaking, be considered as islands since they are connected to the mainland by causeways or bridges, or may be reached by land at low tide.

AREAS TO WHICH COMPARABLE FIGURES RELATE.

Throughout this volume every effort has been made to give comparable populations at the 1961 Census of those areas to which the 1966 figures relate. Consequently, if comparison is made with the Report of the 1961 Census it will be found in the case of administrative districts and Census Towns where alterations in boundaries were made between 1961 and 1966, that the 1961 populations there published differ from those contained in the present volume.

In the enumeration of this Census some small inaccuracies affecting figures published at earlier Censuses came to light. Errors in the 1961 Report on this account have been corrected in the present volume: they relate only to the assignment of population to particular areas and do not affect the overall total figures.

AREA AND VALUATION.

The particulars of area and valuation published in TABLES 9 and 11 were extracted from the records of the Valuation Office. The areas shown are exclusive of the areas under certain lakes, rivers and tideways.

MARRIAGES, BIRTHS AND DEATHS.

The statistics of marriages, births and deaths contained in TABLE 1 and in TABLE 4 are derived from registrations by the Office of the Registrar General. Many births and deaths take place in institutions at a distance from the normal place of residence and are registered in the areas in which the institutions are situated. However, for the purpose of TABLE 4, births have been assigned according to home address of mother and deaths have been assigned according to home address of deceased. This applies also to figures of births and deaths for Provinces shown in TABLE 1 for years subsequent to 1922. In the case of marriages, however, the figures shown in TABLE 1 are the numbers actually registered in the four provinces. Statistics of marriages classified according to area of residence of bride and groom before marriage are available only since 1957 (See Report on Vital Statistics, 1957, and corresponding reports for later years).

COMMENTARY

TOTAL POPULATION AND POPULATIONS OF PROVINCES.

The population enumerated on Census Night, 1966 was 2,884,002 persons, compared with 2,818,341 in 1961, representing an increase of 65,661 or 2.3 per cent. This increase is in sharp contrast with the falls in population which occurred in the two preceding intercensal periods, and which amounted to 79,923 between 1956 and 1961 and 62,329 between 1951 and 1956. The results of the Censuses since 1926 giving totals and numbers of males and females for provinces are shown in TABLE 1.

1961	1,401,792	680,241	417,911	199,482	104,158
1966	1,434,970	720,167	422,966	191,853	99,984

During the forty years 1926 to 1966 an increase in population was recorded at only one other Census, namely that of 1951, and on that occasion the increase amounted to only 5,486 persons. Prior to that of 1951, each Census taken since 1841 had shown a decrease in population for the area of the State, and it is necessary to return to the period 1831 to 1841 to find a greater increase between Censuses than that in the most recent intercensal period.

As will be seen from TABLE 1, the increase in population between 1961 and 1966 was confined to the Provinces of Leinster and Munster. The population of Leinster rose by 82,266 persons or 6.2 per cent, while the population of Munster rose by 10,131 persons or 1.2 per cent. On the other hand, the population of Connacht declined by 17,515 persons or 4.2 per cent, while that of Ulster (part of) declined by 9,221 persons or 4.2 per cent. The falls in population in Connacht and Ulster (part of) between 1961 and 1966 were, however, considerably less than those in the preceding intercensal period, which had amounted to 6.0 and 7.8 per cent, respectively. The substantial increases in population in Leinster and Munster contrasted with falls of 0.5 and 3.2 per cent, respectively, between 1956 and 1961.

The number of males in the State increased by 32,483 or 2.3 per cent between 1961 and 1966, while the number of females increased by 33,178 or 2.4 per cent. This similarity in the changes in the numbers of males and females contrasts with the trend between 1956 and 1961 when the number of males decreased by 46,379 or 3.2 per cent, while the number of females decreased by 33,544 or 2.3 per cent. Between 1961 and 1966, Leinster gained 42,340 males and 39,926 females, Munster gained 5,076 males and 5,055 females, Connacht lost 9,886 males and 7,629 females and Ulster (part of) lost 5,047 males and 4,174 females.

SEX RATIO.

The number of females per thousand males in the State and in each Province is shown in TABLE II for each Census since 1926.

TABLE II:- FEMALES PER THOUSAND MALES IN EACH PROVINCE, 1926 - 1966.

Year	Total	Leinster	Munster	Connacht	Ulster (part of)
1926	972	1,002	965	944	937
1936	952	996	941	901	902
1946	977	1,030	961	912	907
1951	965	1,013	953	896	900
1956	981	1,033	963	902	915
1961	990	1,043	969	907	919
1966	990	1,037	969	913	923

At each Census there has been an excess of males in the population, the 1936 figure of 952 females per 1,000 males being the lowest recorded. The proportion of 990 females per 1,000 males recorded at the 1966 Census is the same as that recorded in 1961. The high figure for Leinster is due mainly to the high proportion of females in Dublin City and County, i.e. 1,116 females per 1,000 males.

POPULATIONS OF COUNTIES AND COUNTY BOROUGHS.

The populations of each County at the Censuses of 1961 and 1966 together with the actual and percentage changes, are shown in TABLE III. Also included in the latter table, for purposes of comparison, are the percentage changes in the two preceding intercensal periods, 1951-56 and 1956-61. By contrast with the two preceding intercensal periods, when there were far more losses than gains of population in County and County Borough areas, the 1961-66 period shows roughly equal numbers of gains and losses of population in these areas. In Leinster, increases in population occurred in all except three Counties, namely Kilkenny, Laoighis and Longford. The population of Dublin County Borough, which declined between 1951 and 1961, showed a substantial increase, amounting to 31,324 persons or 5.8 per cent, between 1961 and 1966. The population of Dun Laoghaire Borough, which had shown almost no change from 1951 to 1961, rose by 3,980 or 8.3 per cent. In the portion of Dublin County, excluding Dun Laoghaire, there was a very substantial population increase, amounting to 41,411 persons or 31.1 per cent. Dublin County, excluding Dun Laoghaire, was the area of greatest population growth in the two preceding intercensal periods as well as in the period 1961-66.

As mentioned in the explanatory notes the boundary of Cork County Borough was extended in 1965. The population within the newly defined boundary of the Borough increased by 8.8 per cent between 1961 and 1966. Waterford County Borough was also extended, with effect from 1 April, 1966; the population within the new boundary increased by 5.4 per cent between 1961 and 1966. Limerick County Borough also increased substantially, namely by 10.1 per cent, in 1961-66. Except for County Kerry, which decreased in population by 3.2 per cent, the Counties of Munster showed little change in population between 1961 and 1966. The small reduction in population in County Clare, amounting to only 105 persons or 0.1 per cent, is particularly noteworthy in view of the fact that the two preceding intercensal periods showed decreases of 5.1 and 4.5 per cent, respectively. Fairly substantial declines in population occurred between 1961 and 1966 in all the Counties of Connacht and Ulster (part of), although these were generally well below the declines observed in the two preceding intercensal periods. The biggest reductions in rates of decline occurred in County Galway and County Monaghan. In County Galway, the fall in population was 1.0 per cent in 1961-66 compared with 3.6 per cent in 1956-61. In County Monaghan, the fall in 1961-66 was 2.9 per cent compared with 9.6 per cent in 1956-61. County Leitrim, on the other hand, showed very little reduction in the rate of fall of population; the decline in population in 1961-66 was 8.7 per cent compared with 9.7 per cent in 1956-61. The position in County Mayo was slightly better, the decline in population in 1961-66 being 6.3 per cent, compared with 7.3 per cent in 1956-61. In the remaining Counties of Connacht and Ulster (part of) the declines in population between 1961 and 1966, although substantial, were well below the level of those which occurred between 1956 and 1961.

AGGREGATE TOWN AND AGGREGATE RURAL POPULATION.

The method of classifying the population into "aggregate town" and "aggregate rural" is described in the explanatory notes. A town size of 1,500 population has been taken as the dividing line in applying this classification at a number of Censuses. However, the many changes in legally defined boundaries of towns, as well as the practice at recent Censuses of including the suburbs or environs in determining the town size makes it impossible to give comparable population figures extending back over a number of years for the areas defined at the 1966 Census as "aggregate town" or "aggregate rural". In TABLE IV roughly comparable figures are given covering the period 1901 to 1936 for the population within the area defined as "aggregate town" at the 1936 Census. Comparable figures are shown for the 1936, 1946 and 1951 Censuses by reference to the 1951 aggregate town areas. For each later Census, however, it is possible to give comparable figures only for the immediately preceding enumeration.

Despite the lack of strictly comparable figures the pattern of increasing town and decreasing rural population over the whole period 1901 to 1966 is very clear. In 1901 only 28.3 per cent of the population was in aggregate town areas, whereas by 1936, this proportion had risen to 35.5 per cent. At the 1966 Census 49.2 per cent of the population was in the aggregate town areas as defined in that year. The rate of increase in the population of aggregate town areas was highest in the most recent intercensal period. Thus, between 1961 and 1966 the population of aggregate town areas increased by 112,000 compared with increases of 12,000 between 1956 and 1961 and 13,000 between 1951 and 1956. Increases in the populations of aggregate town areas were mainly confined to the province of Leinster in the earlier intercensal periods whereas, in 1961-66, each province showed an increase in its population in the aggregate town areas.

In TABLE VA and VB the changes in aggregate town and aggregate rural population are shown for Counties for the intercensal periods 1956-61 and 1961-66 respectively. The 1961 figures in the two tables differ due to the fact that TABLE VA relates to boundaries as defined in 1961, whereas TABLE VB relates to boundaries as defined in 1966.

In most Counties there are striking contrasts between the percentage changes in 1956-61 and in 1961-66, both in the aggregate town and the aggregate rural areas. Between 1956 and 1961, the number of Counties which showed an increase and the number which showed a decrease in their aggregate town populations were almost equal. Between 1961 and 1966, all Counties except one showed increases in their aggregate town populations, the exception being County Kilkenny where only a very slight decrease occurred. Particular reference might be made to Dublin County (excluding Dun Laoghaire Borough) and the Counties of Limerick and Clare where very substantial rises in the populations of aggregate town areas occurred. Whereas, between 1956 and 1961, every County showed a fall in aggregate rural population, between 1961 and 1966 a number of increases were recorded, namely in Counties of Dublin, Kildare, Louth and Meath. In those Counties which showed falls in their aggregate rural populations, the percentage decreases were, in all cases, lower between 1961 and 1966 than between 1956 and 1961, the reduction in some cases being very substantial. In the Counties of Connacht and Ulster (with the exception of Co. Monaghan) the improvement in the more recent period was, however, less than elsewhere.

In 1966 the population in towns of all sizes numbered 1,678,870, representing 58.2 per cent of the total population of the country. Dublin County Borough, Dun Laoghaire Borough and their suburbs contained 25.5 per cent of the total population while the thirteen other towns of over 10,000 population contained 12.7 per cent. The 89 towns between 1,500 and 10,000 inhabitants contained 11.0 per cent of the total population, while the remaining 802 smaller towns contained 9.0 per cent.

In country districts, i.e. districts outside the smallest towns and villages, the number of females was very much less than that of males, the average number of females per 1,000 males being 864. In towns under 200 population also there was a slight excess of males, the average number of females per 1,000 males being 990, the same figure as that for the State as a whole. In all other types of district the number of females exceeded that of males, the female per 1,000 males ratio tending to increase with town size. In Dublin County Borough and suburbs there was 1,120 females to every 1,000 males.

The population changes in the various types of district between 1961 and 1966 are shown in TABLE VII. The figures shown for 1961 and 1966 relate to identical areas, namely the towns, suburbs and environs defined in 1966. On account of the fact that certain towns fell into different size groups at the two Censuses, somewhat different results are obtained according as to whether the type of district classification is based on the population in 1961 or in 1966. For this reason a third classification, based on average population (taking the simple average of the populations of each town in the two Census years) is the most useful.

While the population of each type of district showed an increase between 1961 and 1966, these were generally greater in the case of the larger towns. The highest percentage increases occurred in the case of Dun Laoghaire (24.6 per cent) and Limerick (11.8 per cent). The cities of Dublin and Cork each showed an increase in population of 8.8 per cent. Of the other groups the largest population increase occurred in towns of 3,000 to 5,000 inhabitants (6.6 per cent). Country districts showed a fall in population of 4.1 per cent over the period 1961 to 1966.

POPULATION OF TOWNS.

In TABLE 12 on pages 144, 145 the populations of all towns with 1,500 inhabitants or over are shown, with comparative 1961 figures, the towns being arranged in descending order of size. TABLE VIII shows the percentage change in population between 1961 and 1966 of the larger towns. These percentages refer to the entire built-up area of the town in each case, the population of suburbs or environs being added to that within the legally defined boundary.

MIGRATION.

The number of births registered in the intercensal period 1961 to 1966 exceeded the number of deaths registered in the same period by 146,266, whereas the increase in the total population amounted to 65,661 persons. The difference between these two figures, namely 80,605, equals the net emigration (i.e. the excess in the number of emigrants over that of immigrants) during the period.

TABLE IX:- BIRTHS, DEATHS AND ESTIMATED NET EMIGRATION IN THE INTERCENSAL PERIOD 1961-1966.

	Persons	Males	Females
Births (1/4/61 - 31/3/66)	312,709	160,189	152,520
Deaths (1/4/61 - 31/3/66)	166,443	90,092	76,351
Natural increase (excess of births over deaths)	146,266	70,097	76,169
Increase in population	65,661	32,483	33,178
Estimated net emigration (emigrants less immigrants)	80,605	37,614	42,991

It will be seen from TABLE IX that the figure of net emigration was made up of 37,614 males and 42,991 females. This compares with a net emigration of 212,003 persons, comprising 109,572 males and 102,431 females in the period 1956 to 1961. In the intercensal period 1951 to 1956 net emigration amounted to 196,763 persons, comprising 108,282 males and 88,481 females.

The average annual change in population, natural increase and net emigration for each intercensal period since 1926 is shown in TABLE X.

The average annual natural increase between 1961 and 1966 was 29,253, a figure considerably higher than in any other intercensal period since 1926. As was the case in each intercensal period since 1946, the natural increase for females exceeded that for males. The average annual net emigration in 1961-66 was almost the same as that in 1926-36, and considerably lower than that in any of the other intercensal periods shown. In particular, the average annual net emigration in the most recent intercensal period was much less than half that in the period 1951-56 or in the period 1956-61. The rates of change of population, natural increase and net emigration, are shown in TABLE XI.

TABLE XI: - AVERAGE ANNUAL RATES OF CHANGE IN POPULATION, NATURAL INCREASE AND NET EMIGRATION PER 1,000 OF AVERAGE POPULATION AND NUMBER OF FEMALES EMIGRATING PER 1,000 MALES, 1926-1936 TO 1961-1966.

Intercensal Period	Change in Population	Natural Increase	Net Emigration	Females Emigrating per 1,000 males
1926-1936	- 0.1	5.5	5.6	1,298
1936-1946	- 0.4	5.9	6.3	662
1946-1951	+ 0.4	8.6	8.2	1,365
1951-1956	- 4.3	9.2	13.4	817
1956-1961	- 5.6	9.2	14.8	935
1961-1966	+ 4.6	10.3	5.7	1,143

The various rates contained in TABLE XI for the intercensal period 1961-66 differ substantially from those in respect of the earlier periods. The average annual rate of change in 1961-66 was +4.6 per 1,000 population, compared with -5.6 in 1956-61, while the rate of net emigration in 1961-66 was 5.7 per 1,000 population compared with 14.8 in 1956-61. The average annual rate of natural increase rose substantially, from 9.2 per 1,000 population in 1956-61 to 10.3 in 1961-66.

The number of females emigrating per 1,000 males in the period 1961-66 was 1,143 compared with 935 between 1956 and 1961 and 817 between 1951 and 1956. Despite considerable fluctuations in this proportion from one intercensal period to the next, the difference in the total number of males and females emigrating over a long period is not very great. Thus, in the period between the 1926 and 1966 Censuses, the net emigration of males amounted to 491,000, approximately, while that of females amounted to 472,000, approximately.

The average annual rates of net emigration from each County in the period 1961-66 are compared with those for the three preceding intercensal periods in TABLE XII. In the case of this Table, it is necessary to combine Counties and County Boroughs, because extensions in County Borough boundaries over the period make it impossible to compile net emigration rates for County Boroughs separately. It should be understood that the figures for net emigration take into account all the movement into and out of each County, whether to or from Britain, the Six Counties or some other country, or whether due to transfer within the State from one area to another.

Dublin County and County Borough, which was an area of net immigration in 1946-51, had rates of net emigration of 9.7 and 10.1 per 1,000 population in 1951-56 and 1956-61, respectively but again became an area of net immigration in 1961-66. All other Counties were areas of net emigration in each intercensal period. The majority however, showed considerable reductions in their annual rates of net emigration in the period 1961-66 although in a few cases there was little improvement. The counties having the lowest rates of net emigration in 1961-66 were Cork (3.9), Meath (4.1), Wicklow (4.2), Limerick (5.0), Waterford (5.0) and Clare (6.3).
