While the figures in the Bulletins are described as preliminary there will be, at most, only marginal differences between them and the final figures which are being published in the relevant Census Volumes.

Tabulations containing similar information to that shown in the County Bulletins have been prepared for each District Electoral Division and Ward and for each town of 1,000 population and over. These tabulations are in the form of computer print-outs and will be supplied to interested persons at a charge sufficient to cover the cost of photo-copying.

CENSUS OF POPULATION, 1971

EXPLANATORY NOTES

This Volume of the Report of the Census of Population, 1971, contains detailed classifications by occupations and socio-economic groups of the population of the State and of the principal administrative areas.

The Census was taken on the night of 18 April, 1971 in accordance with the Statistics (Census of Population) Order, 1971 (S.I. No. 93 of 1971) made by the Taoiseach in pursuance of powers conferred on him by Sub-section (1) of Section 16 of the Statistics Act, 1926 and the Statistics Acts, 1926 and 1946 (Transfer of Ministerial Functions) Order, 1949 (S.I. No. 142 of 1949).

INFORMATION COLLECTED.

The following particulars were collected in respect of each individual:— (i) Name, (ii) sex, (iii) relationship to head of household, (iv) usual residence, (v) usual residence one year prior to Census date, (vi) place of birth, (vii) date of birth, (viii) conjugal condition, (ix) date of marriage and number of children (for married women only), (x) religion, (xi) knowledge of Irish (for persons 3 years of age and over), (xii) method of transport and distance travelled to work or school and for persons aged 14 years or over:— (xiii) principal occupation, (xiv) employment status, (xv) name of employer and nature of employer's business, (xvi) age at which full-time education ended and number of years' attendance at school or college, etc. (for persons who had ceased their full-time education), (xvii) scientific or technological qualifications held and fields of science concerned. In addition the following information was collected in respect of each private household:— (i) total area and rateable valuation of agricultural holdings held by members of the household, (ii) nature of occupancy of dwelling (rented, owner-occupied, etc.), (iii) rent of dwelling, (iv) year house was built, (v) rooms occupied, (vi) type of water supply, (vii) availability of bath or shower, (viii) type of sanitary facility, (ix) electricity supply and (x) motor vehicles used by household.

COVERAGE OF THE CENSUS.

The Census figures relate to the de facto population, that is to say the population recorded for each area represents the total of all persons present within its boundaries on the night of Sunday, 18 April, 1971, together with all persons who arrived in that area on the morning of Monday, 19 April, 1971, not having been enumerated elsewhere. Persons on board ships in port are included with the population of adjacent areas. The figures, therefore, include visitors present on Census night as well as residents while Irish persons temporarily absent from the State are excluded. The date of the Census was, however, chosen to coincide with a period when passenger movements were at a minimum and consequently the figures closely approximate to those for the normally resident population. Members of the Defence Forces who, on Census date, were serving abroad with the United Nations were, of course, excluded from the enumeration.

BASIS OF CLASSIFICATION.

All persons aged 14 years of age and over are classified to their usual principal occupation including those who are out of work and those who are temporarily confined to hospitals.

Occupations are divided into two broad categories, gainful and non-gainful, a gainful occupation being one in which the person is actively engaged and from which the livelihood is usually obtained. Persons in certain occupations who do not receive a fixed wage or salary are, however, also classified as gainfully occupied, the principal group of persons in this category being those assisting relatives in farm work. Persons engaged in home duties, persons at school, students, persons not yet at work and retired persons comprise the majority of the not gainfully occupied group. The occupation, in the case of a gainfully occupied person, is determined by the kind of work performed in earning a living irrespective of the place in which, and the purpose for which, it is performed. Classification of the population by occupation thus brings together the numbers of persons engaged in the same type of work regardless of the purpose for which such work is undertaken.

The most detailed occupation classification used in the 1971 Census of Population is that shown in Table 2 of this Volume. In the arrangement of the occupational headings in Table 2 the individual occupations peculiar to, or usually associated with, a particular industry or service have been grouped together. Certain residual headings in this table (e.g. other woodworkers, other transport and communication workers) cover, in the main, occupations which, though peculiar to or usually associated with specific industries or services do not, by reason of the numbers engaged in them, justify separate identification. Such headings do not include persons working in the industry or service in occupations which are common to a number of industries or services (e.g. Clerk, Labourer, etc.). Likewise, not all persons in a particular occupation are necessarily employed in the industry or service most generally associated with that occupation. Thus, not all Carpenters are engaged in the Woodworking Industry. It follows that the broader occupational group totals in this Volume should not be mistaken for the total of persons engaged in the rather similarly described industries and services; information on this latter aspect form the basis of the data given in Volume III of the 1971 Census which has already been published. The questions on the Census schedules from which the statistics contained in the present Volume were derived are set out hereunder.

To be completed for each person aged 14 years or over

PRINCIPAL OCCUPATION

If usually working for payment or profit even if at present out of work, state here the usual principal occupation, giving a full description.

For other persons, write, as appropriate, "Home duties", "At school" (primary, secondary or vocational), "Student" (Medical, Law, etc.), "Not yet at work", etc.

EMPLOYMENT STATUS

If usually working for payment or profit, state whether "Employee", "Assisting relative", "Self employed, employs others" or "Self employed, without employees".

If at present out of work, write "Out of work".

EMPLOYER AND EMPLOYER'S BUSINESS

If an employee, state name of employer (person, firm, company or public body), address of place of work and nature of business carried on by employer.

If self employed, state nature of business in which engaged.

If a farmer, state the area and total rateable valuation of the farm on which working.

If a farm worker, state the area of the farm on which working.

If out of work, state name, address and nature of business of last employer.

To be answered in respect of each private household and of the house, flat or rooms occupied by that household

AGRICULTURAL HOLDINGS

State the area and rateable valuation of all agricultural holdings (if any) in the State, of which persons usually resident in the household are the rated occupiers. Land held under the eleven months system or in conacre or in commonage should not be included.

Area in Statute Acres

Valuation (Land and buildings) £.

More specific directions as to how these questions should be answered were given in a leaflet which accompanied the Census schedule. In addition, the enumerators were requested to examine the completed forms carefully so that vague and inadequate occupational descriptions would be detected and corrected before the forms left the centres of enumeration. Despite these precautions there were, as at previous censuses, a number of cases where incomplete descriptions were given. The procedure in such cases was to use the information such as age and education as well as the employer's business to assign them to the most appropriate heading.

CLASSIFICATION BY EMPLOYMENT STATUS.

Each gainfully occupied person was classified by "Employment Status" to one of the following groups:—

- Employer and own account worker
- Assisting relative
- Employee
- Out of work

CLASSIFICATION BY SOCIO-ECONOMIC GROUP.

The entire population was classified according to "Socio-economic group". The socio-economic group of each gainfully occupied person was decided by his or her occupation or, in some cases, by a combination of occupation and employment status. Listed below are the eleven socio-economic groups plus a residual group which were used, the occupations assigned to each of the eleven groups being considered generally similar as regards the level of skill or educational attainment required. Persons not gainfully occupied were classified to the socio-economic group of the persons on whom they were deemed to be dependent. Thus, if the head of a family was gainfully occupied, dependent members were assigned to his socio-economic group. If the head was not gainfully occupied, the non-gainfully occupied members were assigned to the socio-economic group of the principal earner in the family. If a household did not contain any gainfully occupied persons, the occupants were assigned to the residual group.

While in previous Censuses information was sought from retired persons regarding their former occupation, thus making it possible to classify them directly according to socio-economic groups, on this occasion such information was not sought and, where the former occupation was not stated, these persons were assigned to the residual group except, as explained above, where they could be assigned to the socio-economic group of the principal earner in the family unit. As the number of retired persons involved is quite substantial this significantly affects comparability with the corresponding data on socio-economic groups from the 1966 Census. A further factor to be borne in mind in regard to this latter aspect is the different method used in classifying some semi-skilled labourers according to occupation on this occasion; these changes which also affect assignment of persons to socio-economic groups are explained further on page viii.

A detailed list showing the allocation of occupations to each socio-economic group listed hereunder is given in Appendix B.

- i — Farmers, farmers' relatives and farm managers
- ii — Other agricultural occupations and fishermen
- iii — Higher professional
- iv — Lower professional
- v — Employers and managers
- vi — Salaried employees
- vii — Intermediate non-manual workers
- viii — Other non-manual workers

CONTENT OF THE TABLES.

Little change has been made in the content or layout of the present Volume as compared with the corresponding Volume of the 1966 Census but tables relating to landholders are not now included as a question on this topic was not included in the 1971 inquiry. An extra table (Table 6) has been added which shows the populations of Rural Districts and Towns, etc., classified by occupational group.

It will be noted that the numbering of the occupation headings does not run in sequence (i.e. from 1 to 161) as would be the case had the practice of previous Censuses been adhered to. Instead, because most of the tables were printed by computer, the actual computer codes were used, thus simplifying the programming involved.

Tables 1 and 2 show the classification of the population according to occupational groups and detailed occupational headings, respectively, while in Table 3 the 1966 and 1971 Census results are compared for the detailed occupational headings. As the list of occupations used at the 1966 Census of Population was somewhat longer than that used in 1971, it has been necessary to amalgamate some of the headings published in 1966 in order to give occupational totals comparable to those for 1971. In most cases the occupations affected are immediately clear from a comparison of the 1966 and 1971 Census reports. For example, the 1966 list contains the two headings "Coal miners" and "Other mine and quarry workers" which in the 1971 list are combined under the single heading "Mine and quarry workers". In a number of other instances revisions in the 1971 occupational coding system have affected comparability with correspondingly named occupations in 1966 and in these cases adjustments have been made to the 1966 data in order to maintain comparability in the figures presented in Table 3. The full extent of changes in the classification is indicated in Appendix A. It should also be noted that Builders' labourers are not separately distinguished but have been included in the occupation "Labourers and unskilled workers (n.e.s.)". This is necessary because of the difficulty of distinguishing in the Census returns a Builders' labourer, normally regarded as a semi-skilled worker, from a person who described himself as a labourer working for a builder. He would be regarded as an unskilled worker if the latter description could be accepted as the correct one. This change also affects the socio-economic groups in that all such builders' labourers and their dependents are now assigned to the group "Unskilled manual workers" whereas formerly they were in the group "Semi-skilled manual workers". A similar situation arises in the case of other labourers who had previously been separately distinguished and classified as semi-skilled e.g. Fitter's labourers.

In Tables 4 and 5 figures for occupational groups and detailed occupational headings are given for Provinces, Counties and County Boroughs. Tables 6A and 6B contain classifications by occupational groups for Rural Districts and Towns, etc., while Tables 7A and 7B contain certain occupational classifications for towns of 1,500 population or over. An alphabetical index to the cities and towns appearing in these tables is contained in Appendix F. Table 8 gives a classification of the population of each Province, County and County Borough by socio-economic group, while in Table 9 the group "Farmers, farmers' relatives and farm managers" is further sub-divided according to the total rateable valuation of agricultural holdings held by persons normally resident in the household. Tables 10A and 10B show males and females in the principal occupational groups according to a valuation classification similar to Table 9. Finally, Table 11 classifies males and females by occupation and employment status.

Appendix A sets out the full list of occupations used in presenting the 1971 results while Appendices C to E show how these have been grouped for the various occupational groupings presented in the various tables.

It should be noted that Volume III of the Census Report — Industries — also contains a considerable amount of occupational data. In Tables 7A and 7B of that Volume 1966 and 1971 classifications by broad occupational group are shown for males and females, respectively, at work in the principal industrial groups. Table 8 of the Industries Volume contains a detailed classification of males and females at work in each industry according to occupation and occupational group. In that table each occupation or occupational group having twenty or more males or females within an industry is distinguished separately.

COMMENTARY

The total number of gainfully occupied persons, or total "labour force" (including those out of work), at the date of the 1971 Census of Population was 1,119,531, of whom 831,664 were males and 287,867 were females. This represents a slight increase of just over 1,000 in comparison with total labour force in 1966 (the year of the most recent previous Census), the number of males having increased by about 2,600 while the number of females fell by about 1,300. The number not gainfully occupied aged 14 years and over was 985,790, of whom 217,950 were males and 767,840 were females. This is an increase of just over 7 percent compared with 1966, the number of males having increased by 29,107 (almost 16 percent) and the number of females by 36,004 (just under 5 percent). These increases were caused mainly by the greater numbers of students in secondary and higher education and by the higher number engaged in home duties, reflecting the increase in the number of married women over the period 1966/71.

CHANGES IN OCCUPATIONS, 1966-1971.

Table 1 shows the changes in the principal occupational groups between 1966 and 1971 in both absolute and percentage terms for persons, males and females. Table 3 of the main tables in this volume gives comparative figures for individual occupations for these years. The decline in the numbers in agricultural occupations continued over the period, the numbers in the group Agricultural and forestry workers and fishermen decreasing by 58,500, or 16.9 percent. However the increase of 59,900 (or 7.8 percent) in the total of all other groups was sufficient to give the slight increase in the total gainfully occupied which has been noted above. The groups in which the largest increases in absolute terms occurred were Professional and technical workers where the increase was 15,100; Clerical workers, 11,700; Engineering and related trades workers, 9,000 and Electrical and electronic workers, 5,800. Groups that showed relative increases of more than one-third in comparison with 1966 included Electrical and electronic workers, Operators of cranes, stationary engines and excavators and Foremen and supervisors of manual workers.

* Apparent small discrepancies in this and other tables are due to the effect of rounding-off.

† Less than 20 persons in this group in 1966.

The rate of decline in the Agricultural and forestry workers and fishermen group was more pronounced for females than for males, 23.5 percent as against 16.2 percent but the number of females involved was, of course, much smaller, 7,800 as compared with 50,800 males. Groups in which the number of females increased substantially over the period concerned were Clerical workers, (an increase of 10,400) and Professional and technical workers, (up by 6,500). Large percentage increases occurred in the numbers of female Electrical and electronic workers, 50.8 percent, and Transport and communication workers, 33.3 percent. The number of female Service workers fell by 8,500 and the number of females in the Commerce, insurance and finance workers occupational group declined by 3,200.

DISTRIBUTION OF OCCUPATIONS IN DIFFERENT PLANNING REGIONS.

Table II shows the percentage distribution of the gainfully occupied population of each planning region classified by broad occupational group. The group "Other producers, makers and repairers", which encompasses mainly industrial type occupations, covers occupation numbers 211 to 273 of Table 2 of the main Tables. The content of the remaining headings is clear from the descriptions of the headings themselves, taken in conjunction with the occupational descriptions given in Table 2.

TABLE II:- TOTAL GAINFULLY OCCUPIED IN EACH PLANNING REGION AND PERCENTAGE DISTRIBUTION BY BROAD OCCUPATIONAL GROUPS.

TOTAL	1,119,531	25.8	28.6	9.2	9.7	7.2	9.2	10.3	100.-

The East region, with 409,000 gainfully occupied persons, contained more than one-third of the total number of persons gainfully occupied in the State, with the South West region having the next largest number, 171,000. The only other region to have a labour force of more than 100,000 persons was the South East while the regions with smallest labour forces were Donegal and North West (41,000 and 30,000 persons, respectively). The general pattern exhibited by this table reflects the greater extent of industrial and commercial activity in the eastern part of the country in general and the greater dependence on agriculture in other regions, particularly those on the West coast. While just over one-quarter of the total gainfully occupied population in the State were in Agricultural occupations, the proportion for the East region was only 6.7 percent. This contrasts with the situation in the West and North West regions in particular where roughly one-half of the total gainfully occupied persons were in Agricultural occupations. Other regions had between approximately 30 and 34 percent of their total labour force in this group, with the Donegal and Midlands regions having just over 40 percent. The group "Other producers, makers and repairers" formed almost one-third of the total in the East and North East regions as compared with just under one-fifth in the West and North West regions. The proportion for this group in the other regions varied between approximately 25 and 30 percent.

Apart from the Agricultural occupations the East region shows the highest proportion of gainfully occupied persons in all the other broad occupational groups in question. For example in the case of Clerical workers the difference is very substantial; over 15 percent of gainfully occupied persons in the East region were in this category while the corresponding proportion for the other regions varied between 4 and 7 percent. A similar though less pronounced pattern is evident for the other non-agricultural groups.

SOCIO-ECONOMIC GROUPS.

The number of persons in each socio-economic group showing the proportions gainfully occupied, not gainfully occupied and children under 14 years of age in each group is given in Table III. The method by which the population was classified by Socio-economic group is described in the Explanatory Notes (page vii).

The largest single group was the Farmers, farmers' relatives and farm managers group which contained 607,786 persons or just over one-fifth of the total population. The other agricultural group, Other agricultural occupations and fishermen, contained a further 128,120 persons. There were 491,865 persons in the Skilled manual workers group while the only other groups which contained more than 10 percent of the total population were Intermediate non-manual workers with 359,665 persons and Other non-manual workers with 303,027 persons. The two smallest groups were Higher professional and Salaried employees with 89,369 and 59,545 persons respectively.

There were three groups in which more than one-half of the persons were gainfully occupied; these were the Lower professional, Intermediate non-manual workers and Semi-skilled manual workers group. The groups with the smallest proportion of gainfully occupied persons were Salaried employees and Employers and managers. It must be borne in mind that the proportion of persons not gainfully occupied in a particular Socio-economic group can be influenced by a number of different factors. For example, groups containing a large number of single persons would have a smaller number of persons not gainfully occupied as, in general, single persons do not have dependents (who would be classified to the same socio-economic group); the proportion of secondary school pupils and third level students also varies from one group to another. The "Unknown" group is, of course, a special case in the context of this analysis as it contains most of the retired persons (see page vii) and all persons living in a household which did not contain a gainfully occupied person.

GAINFULLY OCCUPIED PERSONS LIVING IN HOUSEHOLDS WITH AGRICULTURAL HOLDINGS.

Apart from individual data on occupation, employment status, etc. each household was asked to state the total rateable valuation of all agricultural holdings in the State, of which persons usually resident in the household were the rated occupiers. This has been used in combination with the individual data to prepare Tables 10A and 10B. Many persons who are the rated occupiers of agricultural land may state an occupation other than that of farmer as their principal occupation. In addition many gainfully occupied persons although not having a principal occupation connected with agriculture and not themselves being the rated occupiers of agricultural land, nevertheless live in households where some other person is a rated occupier of agricultural land and so might be considered to be associated with agriculture.

Persons living in households with agricultural land are classified in Table IV according to the total rateable valuation of all agricultural holdings in the State of which persons usually resident in the household are the rated occupiers. Persons in agricultural and non-agricultural occupations in each Province are distinguished in this Table which also gives corresponding figures for 1966.

In 1971 there were some 142,700 persons with non-agricultural occupations living in these households together with some 255,500 persons with agricultural occupations. Many of the former were in households where the valuation was low. Table V summarises the position.

While the number of persons in agricultural occupations fell by 58,500 between 1966 and 1971, the number of persons in non-agricultural occupations living in households with some agricultural land rose by 11,300 over the same period. This trend was particularly apparent in Connacht where the number of such persons rose by 5,000 or 19.3 percent. This reflects the increasing number of persons residing in agricultural households but taking up employment in other sectors of the economy. As shown in Table VI the proportionate increase in the number of such persons was highest in the intermediate valuation groups.
